EUROPEAN CITIES DO WITHOUT TAXES

Writing in the Kansas City Star Homer T. Bittel says: It is because of its cities, and especially German cities, are keeping their public property and their public values for the public that they have made such wonderful advances in recent years. Most American cities, on the other hand, turn over to special interests all their municipal franchises, all their public utilities and everything else that gets its money value from the fact of the people living together in a community. Then we wonder why our city governments are hopelessly poor, why we have slums and dirty streets, why our craft oppresses and shames us. In San Francisco it has been made clear that our troubles are due to the corrupting influences of the public utility companies which are known as the Associated Corporations—associated utilities, one newspaper writer called them. If proof of this was needed, I found it in Germany, Austria and Swiss cities, where all public utilities, except a few cities, are owned by the municipalities and where corruption is unknown.

Why, a citizen of a German city would as soon rob his own household as to rob his city or support by his vote any one who was getting the better of the public. This is because the city is his and does things for him. There are no great special interests whose profits come from getting all they can out of the people and we feel an incentive to better ourselves and control politics. The growth of Continental European cities is amazing to us who think we have all the growth over here. Berlin has grown faster than Chicago. Frankfurt-on-the-Main had seventy thousand population in 1880, and has four hundred thousand now. Düsseldorf is a city of one-hundred million persons today where twenty years ago it had only twenty thousand. And so all through Germany. The growth in industry and commercial enterprise of the empire and its cities is astonishing. The cities have taken care of their growth—kept pace with it—by making it a business to be governed well and to take for the people the things which naturally belong to the people. So too, they are foresighted and plan for the needs of the people.

Berlin owns 30,000 acres of land within and around its own limits. Frankfurt owns 12,000 acres. The cities will sell this land to any one or any syndicate that will buy subject to the city's regulations as to building, open spaces, sanitation, etc. The result is that the working people have cheap and wholesome and attractive places in which to live. Frankfurt-on-the-Main put out one issue of $500,000 of bonds. Such an investment as buying a public utility or taking over a money-making asset. The people, in other words get the value of what they themselves created; they control the business of providing what the city has to use as being their business and they realize that the city is their home life at every point.

To more than a thousand cities in Germany and Austria not a cent of taxes is levied. The revenues are raised from the lowest cost that will make the city safe in its investment. The average street railway fare on these municipal street railways of Germany is about two cents. The service is better on the cheap municipal lines than on the few which are in the hands of private companies.

WHY ALFONSO IS RECKLESS

London, Nov. 24.—A story is current among the friends of King Alfonso of Spain that the reason of his seeming recklessness when danger lurks at every turn, is because he believes himself to be a charmed life so long as he wears a certain gold ring set with diamonds and pearls. The ring is supposed to bring long life and joy to worthy Spanish monarchs and disaster to everyone else who possesses it.

SMALLPOX KILLS REDS

Arapahoe Indians in Wyoming Beaten by Epidemic.

Cheyenne, Wyo.—Ninety-three Indians on the Arapahoe Indian reservation have died of smallpox within four days. The disease is manifested in its most malignant form. Officials in charge of the reservation are fighting vainly to stop the spread of the disease.

OIL FOR DOMESTIC WHEELS

Little Hints Which Will Help Save Wear and Tear in Households of the Land.

Washingtubs which are not in constant use will crack unless some water is kept in them.

A few drops of lemon squeezed into the water will make the darkest looking potato bowl white.

To thicken peach jelly which otherwise remains too liquid use one-half pint of water to each quart of peaches.

If a baby's ankles are weak, dissolve a handful of sea salt in a quart of rain-water and bathe them every morning and night.

After removing the baby from the bath wrap him at once in a large flannel sheet before commencing drying operations.

"In buying vegetables avoid carrots, beets, and similar roots that have had their green tops removed," says a veteran housekeeper.

For reddened skin bathe the face with milk or roses, procurable at the chemist's or paint shop, and shade it as much as possible from the sun.

Some housekeepers use a paint brush for dusting the crevices and corners in their furniture; but a firm, sharp-pointed brush made for the purpose can now be had.

To clean neglected lacquered brass wares gently in lukewarm water, rub with cloth dipped in equal parts of lemon and lemon juice and then polish with a dry, soft cloth.

A simple dessert is made by grinding glass plates with lady fingers and filling up the crevices with frozen whipped cream, sweetened and flavored with peach pulp or home-made wine.

To prevent any shade of blue from fading, soak for two hours in a pail of water to which one ounce of sugar has been added. Then be sure to dry well before washing and ironing.

Ice coffee.—To four cups of clear, strong coffee add two cups of scalded milk and one-half cup sugar. Mix well, cool, and place on or near the ice. To serve, pour over shaved ice in glasses. Cold tea is excellent to use in place of coffee. Cold water is excellent to use in place of coffee. Cold water is excellent to use in place of coffee.

CHILDREN ARE KEPT Indoors While Hunters Scur Woods and Fields—Animal a Tame One.

Greenwich, Conn.—Diligent search was made today by a party being continued to-night by hunters through the woods which surrounded the New York colony of Rock Ridge, the summer home of Percy Rockefeller, William H. Rockefeller, Jr., Mr. Massey, Max Wallerstein, and Commodore George Lauder, Jr., for a bear that is at large and terrorizing the community. Bear tracks have been found, but thus far the trail has been lost by men and dogs.

The Rock Ridge residents have kept a sharp eye on their children, many foregoing the pleasure of sitting on their verandas, fearing a visit from Bruin. The animal was first discovered by Mr. and Mrs. George Cronk at the Bowdler's, the estate of the Post, the well-known manufacturer. Mr. Cronk is superintendent of the place, which is being occupied by Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Close, son-in-law and daughter of J. B. Post. Mr. and Mrs. Cronk were returning from a buggy ride when they spied the bear in the road.

Gypsies yesterday inquired for a bear which they said has escaped from them in this vicinity.

TOWN JEERS HOBBLED GIRL

Logansport, Ind., Drives Chicagoan to Refuge in Cab

Logansport, Ind.—That a hobble skirt, however beautiful in Chicago, constitutes a dangerous costume to wear in small cities was evidenced today.

Logansport saw its first example of the true hobble skirt on a woman who left a Chicago train this noon, and before she had gone five blocks she was accosted by such a mob of jeering fellows that her return to the Pennsylvania depot was made in a cab through the streets.

Miss Margaret Conover, of Chicago, did not stop long enough to give her street address to the grocer who helped her out of the trouble. She was en route to Cincinnati and "hobble" skirt, the assistance of the Pullman car porter, the hobble skirt was worn, which is as far as the average man writer can describe it. It was about eighteen inches in diameter at the bottom, and there was a band somewhere just above the ankles that not only impeded its wearer's locomotion but threatened to tie up traffic on the main streets.

Excitement Among Proletariat

Before Miss Conover had crossed the street about five minutes later, she had a following about as large as the first time the hobble skirt was worn down State street, Chicago.

First the following was fairly evident, then it grew into a mob. The hobblers, until five blocks from the depot, the wearer lost her nerve and there to go five more steps to climb.

Miss Conover eventually had some experience with the hobble. She went up sidewalks instead of trying to go up the steps direct. This gave the mob about five minutes pleasure and she showed it by their cheers. On the last step, she swerved a little to ward "fine speed ahead" and there was a ripping sound.

How She Escaped

As usually as possible under the circumstances, Miss Conover approached the clerk, saying: "Let me have five pounds of sugar, or baking powder, or something."

"And may I see the proprietor, or the book-keeper, or anybody if she is a woman?"

While she crouched waiting for her appearance Miss Conover arranged for a retreat to the Pennsylvania station by hiring a cab and being driven through back streets.

WOMAN DREDGES FOR LIVING

Runs Fleet that Pumps Coal and Sand From River.

Harrisburg—Prominent as the oldest member of the Ross family at Harrisburg is Helen Ross, who, although in her 70th year, carries on a unique occupation among women of this section—that of directing a profitable business of pumping sand and coal from the bed of the Susquehanna River and disposing of it as fuel and building material. The supply is unlimited and for years the watermen along the place where the Lykens Valley joins the Susquehanna in the north to a point away below Harrisburg have maintained fleets of boats with steam pumps to get out the backwash of the river. The boats are loaded with tons of sand and behind rocks and the sand that forms the bed of the river and is thrown up by the watermen's pumps.

It was such an unusual business for a woman to conduct that her neighbors laughed and predicted that she would soon grow tired of it. But Mrs. Ross went on as she keeps working and has kept at it since. Every morning, when conditions are favorable, she directs her force of fifteen men to the spots where coal and sand are to be had, and from time to time visits them to see that everything is right. Despite her age she keeps working and is perhaps the most remarkable business woman in Pennsylvania.

PRISONER COMPOSES SONG AND ORATORIC

Work of Theatrical Man Who Shot Wife is Pronounced Almost Classic.

New York, Nov. 17.—Like Oliver Goldsmith, who wrote "The Vicar of Wakefield" while behind prison bars; John Bunyan, who produced "The Pilgrim's Progress" under similar circumstances, and more recently John Carter, who was liberated from the Minnesota penitentiary because of the exquisite poetry he wrote there, Alfred R. Dalby, a prisoner in the Fombs, has been employing his artistic talents by composing high-class music in his cell.

Dalby, in July last, shot his wife, "Liddy" Hudson, who was in the chorus of "Girls," and then tried to kill himself. The affair was caused, he said, by the young woman's asking for more money than he was able to give her. He was a musical director for comedies and light operas for years and when sent to the Fombs his first request was for some blank sheets and a fountain pen. He had no access to any instrument, but was able to compose by humming the notes he wanted.

He sent today to his friend, John Finkham, a church organist, two compositions which Mr. Finkham says are strikingly good. One is a dream melody that fits the words of Arthur Guiterman's "Burmese Love Song." The other composition is a church oratorio—a new setting to the familiar Ruth-Naomi story, "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee." This, Mr. Finkham says, is almost a classic.

Dalby will be tried within a week or two and it is believed his punishment will be light.

BOY DIES TO SAVE OTHERS

And Chums Give Their Blood in Vain Effort to Save
His Life.

WAS CRUSHED BY ENGINE

Chicago Youth Saved Sister and Friend, But Lost Own
Life in Effort.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—Leslie Childs, son of L. F. Childs, treasurer of St. D. Childs Co., gave his life in saving his sister and a friend from injury beneath a train yesterday morning. Shortly afterward, Lawrence Ryan and Paul Herrick, school chums of Childs', at Lewis institute, gave up some of their blood in a vain effort to save his life.

It was while hurrying to catch a Chicago and Northern railroad train at Beretown and Hunting avenues, that young Childs, who was 19 years old, was run down by the train he planned to take. He was returning home from the opening exercises of the Carl Schurz High school with his sister, Marguerite Childs, 17 years old, and a group of acquaintances.

Shoves Girl to Safety

The party attempted to cross the tracks directly in front of the train. When he realized how close the train was, young Childs pushed his sister and Miss Lane Cooper, another companion, across the tracks in safety, but on account of the slippery condition of the ground where he was standing he fell and was unable to get out of the way of the engine himself. It passed over him, cutting off his left leg, and crushing his right leg so badly that amputation was necessary.

Childs was taken to the Dunning hospital by the police of the Irving Park station, and immediately was placed upon the operating table.

Ask Friends for Aid

It was hoped to save his life by transfusing new blood into his veins, and a call was made on several of his schoolmates. A number started for the hospital, but except for Ryan and Herrick, arrived too late. Young Childs died two hours after the accident, just as his father reached his side.

The engineer of the train said he did not see Childs and first learned there had been an accident through the screams of the boy's sister.

BRAND RAN AWAY. COULDN'T STAY HID

French Premier Mysteriously Disappeared, But Was Found by a Detective.

Paris.—M. Brand, the French Prime Minister, who recently returned from a holiday, was lost for a week, and was finally discovered in the village of Pacy-sur-Sure.

M. Brand wanted a real holiday, and kept his movements so secret that he departed from Paris without leaving his address, even with his private secretary. While he was gone several important questions arose, and it was absolutely necessary for the other members of the Government to find their chief. They hunted for him for a week and eventually applied to the police to find him.

A detective discovered him at Pacy dressed as a French fisherman, in an immense beaver-skin coat, with a fur collar, soft shirt, without a collar, and trousers rolled up to the knees, showing bare legs and feet.

The detective was clever enough not to recognize the Premier openly, but talked to him about fishing and gradually led the conversation around to politics, and the disappearance of M. Brand, which, he said, was public talk in Paris.

M. Brand looked suspicious, and said he had been playing cards at that time evening he telephoned to his secretary and told him of his whereabouts.

EARLY FLYING MACHINES

Something very like the present-day flying machines was invented as far back as 1843 by a Mr. Henson. The principal feature was the great expansion of its sustaining planes. The machine was to advance with its front edge a little raised, the effect of which would be to present its under surface to the air over which it was passing. Mr. Henson also invented a steam engine of surprising lightness to drive it, but he never trusted himself to this machine. Some of the features of his invention would, however, perhaps be worth digging out of the Patent Office.

NOVEL CURE FOR STOUTNESS

Social Washington is highly amused at a story at the expense of a man well known in club circles which has just leaked out. The victim of the joke is Mr. F. O. Horstmann, a very wealthy Washington. Mr. Horstmann weighed sixteen stones, and was getting fatter, so his doctor prescribed work for him.

The chairman got a job after some difficulty as a beer inspector at £200 a year. When he assumed his duties he found that they chiefly consisted in sampling beer. He kept the work for a week, but when he actually found he was putting on more flesh he gave it up, and begged his friends not to tell the doctor what kind of work he had procured.

IRELAND IS IN FINE CONDITION

Says Viscount Middleton—An Immense Advance in Comfort and Prosperity.

INCREASE OF 77 PER CENT.

In Joint Stock Bank Deposits Since 1881—And 244 Per Cent. In Savings Bank Deposits.

Viscount Middleton, presiding at the annual meeting in Dublin of the Irish Landowners' Convention recently, said for five and twenty years he had been engaged in a long struggle for the protection of the interests of Irish land-owners, and for the general advantage of those connected with land in Ireland. They hoped that they were now at the last phase of the three great phases of Irish land legislation with which they had been grappling for the past forty years. If a stranger who had been accustomed to walk about this country in the seventies, now went about it he could not deny that there had been an immense advance in the comfort and prosperity of the people and their dwellings. Joint stock banks showed an increase of $10,000,000 in money deposited since 1881, or 77 per cent, and that the savings bank, which had only $15,000,000 deposited in 1881, now showed $65,000,000, an increase of $50,000,000, or 244 per cent.

Now, when a continual outcry was being made that England was being forced to pay for the emancipation of Ireland from the landlords, and when the newspapers were flooded with figures to show what the contribution of England had been to the Irish exchequer and Irish expenditure, there should be put side by side with it the fact that under these Acts the landlords of Ireland had contributed a fair share of $10,000,000. He could not help thinking that $10,000,000 a year out of a total of $35,000,000 was a colossal sacrifice, and it had been exacted by the conscience of the nation from the pockets of its most loyal subjects.

A resolution urging the continuance of the Land Purchase Act was passed.

ORDER A NEW TRIAL

According to a telegram received recently from Ottawa, by Emery, Newell and Bolton, the Supreme Court of Canada has allowed the appeal of the estate of Richard Dinwiddie against the C. N. R. and ordered a new trial.

Four years ago, while the railway bridge over the river at Fort Saskatchewan was out of repair, the C. N. R. train from Edmonton was backed part-way across the bridge to meet the train from the Vegreville which was usually shunted out on the bridge 25 far as it was possible to go. On this particular night, 12th of April, 1906, the west-bound train was late and Dinwiddie lingered behind the other passengers, who walked on over the bridge to meet the up train. Nothing more was seen of him alive; his body was found some days later in the river, he having evidently met death by drowning.

The case came up before Mr. Justice Harvey in the Supreme Court in May, 1909, and was by him withdrawn from the jury because there was not enough evidence to prove how he met his death. In January, 1910, it came before the Supreme Court, ex banc, Judge Scott gave judgment for the court dismissing the appeal; Judge Sifton agreed with Judge Scott, but Judge Stuart dissented, and expressed his opinion that it should have been left to the jury.

The plaintiff took the case to the supreme court of Ontario, where there was argued on October 21st, 1910, by Wallace Nesbitt, K. C., for the plaintiff and Clifford and Christie, for the defence. The appeal was allowed and a new trial ordered.

At the trial in Edmonton, Emery, Newell and Bolton appeared for the plaintiff; Short, Cross, Biggar and Cowan for the defence. The amount of damages claimed was $50,000.

Could Not Rest at Night.

Back Was So Weak.

Weak, lame and aching backs are the primary cause of kidney trouble. When the back aches or becomes weak it is a warning from the kidneys that everything is not right with them.

heed the warning; cure the weak, lame, aching back and dispose of any chances of further trouble.

If you don't do this, serious complications are very apt to arise and the first thing you know you will be troubled with Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's Disease, the three most deadly forms of Kidney Trouble.

On the first sign of anything wrong Don's Kidney Pills should be taken. They go to the seat of the trouble and strengthen the kidneys, thereby strengthening the back.

Mrs. John Lough, Parkdale, Man., writes:—"I have used Don's Kidney Pills. I don't have to bend them. I could not rest at night my back was so weak. I tried everything, but could not get anything to do me any good until I was told by a friend to use Don's Kidney Pills. I tried them and I am not the same weak woman I was before. I am very thankful to have found so speedily a cure."

Don's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box or 2 for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. M. Lough Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Don's."

BLUFFING THE KAISER

German Pleased Emperor by Denying Existence of Socialists.

Berlin.—The Panitz Allgemeine Zeitung relates that the Kaiser, meeting the director of a Panitz carriage factory at Marienburg, questioned him as to the conditions in the factory. The director replied: "In my factory there are no Socialists."

It is stated that the Kaiser was visibly delighted at this information. He charged the director to convey to the employees his royal thanks for their loyal opinions, and expressed the hope that their "devotion to the Crown" would become more firmly established in the land.

MONEY ACQUIRED BY ART OF WHINING

LIFE IN LONDON'S COLONY OF BEGGARS WHERE BABIES ARE ON HIRE FOR EXHIBITION PURPOSES.

The London Express says: London has many little known districts, but none more strange than the Notting Dale colony of professional beggars denounced by Mr. Denman, the Marylebone magistrate, as reported in yesterday's "Express."

The "Beggars' Colony" is hidden in a maze of mean streets in the royal borough of Kensington, midway between the mansions of Holland Park and the bustling Edgware road.

The district is the most lawless in all London. Three thousand police court convictions last year have already appeared at the local police court on one charge or another since January 1 of this year, but the "Beggars' Colony" floridities in spite of all the police can do.

The deserving poor do not live in this area, or, if they do, have no associations with the "ale pitchers" as they call themselves. The colony has its own professional rules and manner of life, and poverty is certainly not one of the hardships from which its members suffer.

The Notting Dale "ale pitchers" are divided into the following groups: (1) Men and women who hire staved-looking children by the day to enlist the sympathy of the benevolent. (2) Old "soldiers" and "sailors" with beggar boards and records complete.

(3) Shabby-gentled men in tattered frock coats and carefully brushed broken boots who talk of "college days." (4) "Musical" beggars. They live by singing "Home, Sweet Home," and "There is a Happy Land" in quiet West End squares at night.

(5) Begging letter writers. (6) Beggars who solicit alms under the pretext of offering matches, studs, or hares for sale.

In the "Beggars' Colony" the Plausibility men, in word of professional help can have all his wants supplied by men who have made a life-study of the self-heartlessness of the benevolent.

Baby for Squeezing a Day
A "ale pitcher" who knows the ropes can hire a sickly infant at the reasonable rate of sixpence a day. An unusually wretched looking baby is usually desired—perhaps neglected—but a whole family of neglected nites can be borrowed for two shillings—and "no questions asked."

One house in a court makes a specialty of supplying professional beggars with food. Here can be purchased cheaply boards with "Dei and dum" painted on, or harrowing pictures of battles or disasters, in which the imposter who carries them certainly had no part.

"Records" can be bought cheaply at another house close by. These re-

One Pound a Day

Many make from 15s. to £ a day with an ingenious tale, and a good workman's wages are taken by men who only "whine" a few hours a week.

The Notting Dale colony is the home of impostors, and an inspector of police with many years' knowledge of the district, to an "Express" representative yesterday.

"There are streets I could name in that district where no resident ever thinks of doing an honest day's work."

"They do not get short of money either. There are twelve public houses within a few hundred yards of the colony, and the men and women all ways get to have money to spend."

"They must not be taken in by the fact that they get up until six or seven in the evening. They know people are not in the humor to give money early in the day so they pick their tales at night."

"Again and again charitable persons come down to this district to give clothes for children and food for starving families, drawn by one pitiable tale told them in the street."

"They must not be taken in by the fact that there are no 'living children' and that the money they have already given has gone in at once to the 'ale pitcher'."

"Furnished rooms are let out by the day in some streets in this Notting Dale district. The professional beggars find it an attractive address from which to send out their appeals. Hundreds of charitable people have been deceived in this way to my knowledge."

"The professional beggars choose this district too, because it is so handy. One day I saw a man, a few minutes' walk brings them into the busy streets where they lie in wait for the benevolent."

"Many of these defrauders of the public have been convicted more than once, but they return to their old tricks."

GARRICK HOME TO BE PRESERVED

London, Nov. 25.—The sale of Garrick's villa, the fine old house at Hampton, in which the great Shakespearean actor lived from 1745 until his death in 1779, has struck something like dismay, not only in stage circles but among the many who would, if they could, preserve these historical buildings in and around London, which are so fast disappearing under the unmerciful hammer of the modern house builder. The house was a stone mansion in the Italian style when it came into Garrick's possession. He called it a famous architect, Robert Adam, so design a new front and to enlarge the house, and there gave his celebrated entertainments to the literary and artistic lions of the day.

The house itself is separated from the river by a public highway, but a tunnel under the road gave the actor and his friends access to the river side lawn, on which was erected also from Adam's plans, a little octagonal Grecian temple, with its domed roof and an Ionic portico, as a shrine for Rembrandt's statue of Shakespeare, now in the British Museum.

Shakespeare Statue
For this statue Garrick himself set as a model. The original statue was in marble, but the duplicate in less costly material still occupies the same place of honor in this charming summer house. After the actor's death the villa was occupied by Mrs. Garrick until her death in 1824, and then passed into other hands. In recent years it has been occupied by Sir Clifford Robinson.

At the villa Garrick was visited by such celebrities as Dr. Johnson, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Sheridan, Goldsmith, Burke and Hannah Moore. It was Johnson himself, asked how he liked the place, said: "It is the leaving of such places that makes the deathbed so terrible."

Through the news of the sale comes as a blow to many people the Society of West End Theatre Managers has at yet given up all hope that sufficient money may yet be gathered to "preserve" the villa and beautiful grounds from the hands of the builders as a memorial to the great actor.

Wouldn't Stay Where it Belonged.
Mrs. Manning—"What, do you mean to tell me that your splendid curly haired cook has left? Couldn't you make her stay?"

Mrs. Manderville—"Oh, yes; we could have made her stay easily enough—the trouble was we couldn't make her hair stay."

PRESERVE FRUIT WITH WATER

Novelty Exhibited at London Botanic Gardens

A magnificent display of all sorts of fruit preserved without sugar or any chemical preservative is the chief novelty of the dahlia exhibition held recently at the Royal Botanic Gardens, London.

Here were seen and purchased glass jars containing the most luscious, appetizing fruit, all of which has been bottled with water as the sole preservative.

"The great beauty of this new method is its simplicity," said Mr. E. F. Haves, secretary of the National Dahlia Society.

"First select your fruit, taking care to pick it when nearly ripe—just before it becomes soft, in fact."

"Top and tail the fruit when necessary. Then, after the roughly cleaning it, place it gently in a glass jar. On no account must the fruit be pressed down or crushed."

"Now fill the jar with ordinary pure water, and place it, uncapped, in a large sauceman or similar vessel, which should contain sufficient water to reach but not cover the rim of the glass jar."

"Now heat gradually—over a gas fire for preference—until a temperature of 100 degrees Fahrenheit (52 degrees below boiling point) is reached. Keep at this temperature for from fifteen to twenty minutes (the longer the fruit the longer the time), then remove the jar and cover it at once with an airtight cap."

"This is done by placing a ring of india-rubber on the top of the jar, with a glass or tin plate pressed upon it."

"As the steam inside the jar condenses the pressure of the outer air firmly make the cover fit firmly and hermetically."

After twenty-four hours examine the cap. If firmly fixed the process of preservation is complete."

GUGGENHEIM GETTING IT

His Trust Products Sell at Just One-Half the Price in Germany

New York—Recent investigations have disclosed the startling fact that Guggenheim and his associate members of the Lead Trust have been selling white lead in Hamburg, Germany, for just one-half what it charges at home. When the Payne-Adair tariff was under debate it was Simon Guggenheim, senior senator from Colorado, who pleaded for a high duty on white lead to protect the lead industry of the west from the cheap Spanish ones which would otherwise deluge the country. He succeeded in having the duty fixed at 25 cents per pound.

Now comes the news that while white lead costs 6 cents per pound in New York, the same lead is offered in Hamburg, plus insurance and freight, at 3 1/2 cents. Further, it is found that the Guggenheim interest in the cartridge trust did not at all object to importing the "cheap Spanish lead" for the manufacture of cartridges. Again Guggenheim advocated a high duty on zinc, which many thought should be on the free list. A glance at the prices of his trust products shows that he gives the Germans zinc for 4 1/2 cents, while his own people are charged 9 1/2.

JUBILEE OF STREET CARS

First Tram Lines in England Opened Fifty Years Ago

Fifty years ago the first street car line (on English, the first "tramway") in Europe, was opened at Birkenhead by the eccentric American, George Francis Train. All the crowned heads of Europe were invited to be present at the opening. Next year Train turned his attention to London, and established several lines there, but the rails used were objected to, and Train disappeared from London for ten years more. A correspondent of an English paper says the word "tram" comes from the name of the man who built the first freight tramway in England, but the unfeeling dictionary refuses to confirm this interesting derivation.

HICCOUGH MAY PROVE FATAL

New Jersey Minister Has Attack and Physicians Fear He Will Not Recover

Belmar, N. J., Nov. 25.—Violent and incessant hiccoughs have so worn down the strength of the Rev. J. W. McLaughlin that his physicians have slight hope of his recovery. For years ago he had a similar but milder attack, and was only saved with great difficulty. The present attack began last Tuesday.

BUSIEST SUMMER IN LONDON'S HISTORY

Coronation Will Attract Great Multitudes to the World's Metropolis Next Year

London, Nov. 25.—The general impression among those who cater for crowds is that next year—the year of the coronation—will be the busiest London has ever known and that a record of the number of visitors will be set. Quite a number of hotels will be enlarged to meet the demand for accommodation and for the summer months every available room in neighboring houses is being looked for by guests who do not mind "sleeping out." There is also a scheme for building a new central hall for the holding of exhibitions, while it is more than likely that the coronation shows will include a huge panorama illustrative of the rise and growth of the British navy, with representations of sea battles, ancient and modern.

"Ashley—"I always thought that Beesling was leading a worthless life." Seymour—"Wasn't he?" Ashley—"No; his life was insured for a thousand."

JIMMY GOT HIS ANSWER

He Couldn't Be Sure of His Feelings, But in the Crisis He Knew.

"We parted then and I was to return in a year and marry her," said Jim. "At the end of the home trial we had parted, her arms about me, my lips in her hair."

"I can live," she whispered, "because you are coming back to me—Jim, my Jim! Come soon, soon!"

As first we wrote every day. But business was driving me here in New York. My letters grew shorter, irregular. Her's came faithfully. I grew careless. Sometimes I found two or three of her letters to me unopened in my pocket where they had been thrust and forgotten. Then there would be weeks and I did not write. I missed her picture from my mantel—it had been gone weeks before I noticed. Later I found it dusty and matted, behind my desk, where it had fallen.

"I was forgetting her! Does that mean that I no longer loved her, as I should, to marry her? If so, I know. What is my duty to her now? That ought I to do?"

I looked at the paper he thrust toward me, and by the freight I read this telegram: "I am coming to you. It is too long to wait. Aunt Harriet's, Friday night."

"Now what have you to say?" asked Jim. "What am I to do? Marjorie Graydon's happiness, her life lies in my hands—I know it. She is living for me as she thinks I am living for her."

"What right have I to go into her home and win her love, unless I know I can give in return? Can I make her happy? I have been having things drift because I did not know. Can I marry her without the full conviction I had last summer. Can I, through a blinding, when I know I am already given, blind her to my deception? Shall I sell her the truth and break her heart, or shall I live a lying lie?"

"Shall I learn, when I see her, that love can be born again? Will this winter's doubt vanish as I touch her lips? Ah, how I despise myself!"

He stooped with head dropped on his breast. And tomorrow Jim would have to know his mind.

In the morning he said to me with a drawn face, "Teddy, I don't know yet." In the afternoon the same: "I can't tell; I don't know; I'll have to wait to see her."

The night was crisp and brilliant as Jim took his cab. The booming cry of one-way, calling a special "collision extra" fell on deaf ears.

At the corner of Eighty-ninth street he dismissed the cab and walked the remaining half block alone.

A maid answered the ring. She recognized him and started forward eagerly.

"It's Miss Graydon arrived yet?" he asked, sleepily.

The little maid gave a quick glance of horror. "Why, Mr. Chamberlain!" she gasped. "Didn't you know? Haven't you heard? Miss Harriet sent for you over an hour ago."

"What—what for? What do you mean?" interrupted Jim hoarsely.

"Why, Mr. Chamberlain," said she, "there has been a terrible accident to the cabin and Miss Marjorie—was killed!"

Jim gazed at the trembling little maid for a full minute before he went stumbling down the steps.

It was then that the question—questioning was answered—Harper's Weekly.

ORIGINATOR OF HOTEL MAGNIFICENCE

"The hotel-patronizing public owes George C. Boldt a considerable debt," says Hampton's Magazine for September, "for he has won over William Waldorf Astor to his way of thinking. Sumptuousness was not a factor to be anticipated by the arriving guest accustomed to the commonplace cry of 'Front!' Disregarding established customs, Mr. Boldt determined in 1891 to promote hotel 'luxury' right over the head of hotel 'necessity' and he has long since discovered that it can be made to pay."

"Ever since the success of hotel operation extraordinary, ever since Mr. Boldt proved that there is no profit in luxury, there have been a score of luxurious hostilities built and successfully operated in every part of the United States. They are all more or less patterned after the Waldorf-Astoria, and many even surpass the original in sumptuousness of appointment and advanced convenience."

"George C. Boldt came to America from Rugen, Germany, in 1871, at the age of eighteen. He had a few dollars which he straightway lost in a chicken and duck farm in Texas. A little later he was a dish carrying omnibus in a second-class New York restaurant, situated at Broadway and Thirty-fourth street. Twenty years afterward Mr. Boldt sat at the managerial desk of the finest hotel in Christendom, where he was soon receiving $200,000 a year as salary and carried profits. To-day the ablest hotel operator living is relaxing in the contentment of thoroughly won leisure, with a private fortune several times the desired one million."

"In 1902, after the departure from America of Prince Henry, Mr. Boldt was decorated by Kaiser Wilhelm with the Crown Order of the fourth class. Mr. Boldt owns a magnificent home on Herby's Island in Alexandria Bay, among the Thousand Islands, which is one of the show places in that section, and there he always spends his summers. Mrs. Boldt died in 1905. Two children, Mrs. Alfred Miles and George Boldt, Jr. are still living."
